Aims and Implementation

- At Our Place School we are proud of the fact that we aim to shape what we do according to the individual students on roll. As such, we are flexible to how we devise and deliver the curriculum we offer and will continue to adapt and refine it as the need arises. We aim for our curriculum to be inclusive of all our students needs.
- Using our assessment and knowledge of students, we plan our curriculum to encourage next phases of learning to support progress. We work hard to identify and remove barriers to learning by using our expertise, sensitivity, perception and adaptability to respond to the student's changing social and emotional needs. We provide opportunities to experience challenge and success and know when to ease off when frustration / lack of resilience begins to show.
- We know that our students respond to innovative and flexible approaches to learning and therefore use these to motivate and promote curiosity and intrigue. We believe that students learn in different ways, so we modify our teaching styles and resources to match student's learning styles. We allow students to make mistakes without undue criticism and we give them time to be successful. We value all attempts and contributions. We actively promote that the students have ownership in their own learning and if they are self-motivated in a particular area, this is encouraged and supported. We encourage our students to persevere and thus develop resilience.
